Your tree has been planted at "Jindalpa" National Park and is under the care of the Queensland Parks and Wildlife Service. It is next to the Daintree Discovery Centre - well worth visiting if you make it to the Daintree.

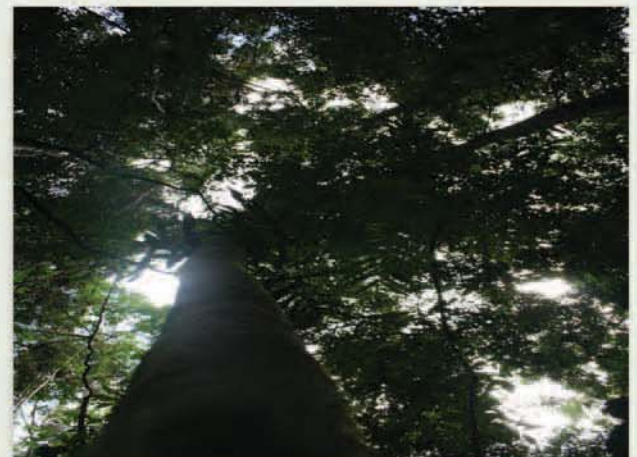

Photographs of this site were taken in December 2009.

This site is now closed to public access to allow the revegetation that has been planted, to naturally grow and become part of the surrounding old growth rainforest in the world heritage listed Daintree National park.

The site is slowly growing back.

The site has authorised access only to help growth.

The Canopy of the revegetated site is amazing.
